Col. Stipe looks forward to challenges

I want to thank everyone right up front for the terrific Kwajalein welcome the community bestowed on Gary and me as we arrived this last week. This is a very special place, and has already won my heart! To those I have already met and those I have yet to meet, American and Marshallese alike, Yokwe! I am very excited about this command tour and I look forward to meeting and working with each of you. By way of brief introduction, I spent the last two years working on the joint staff in Korea, a cold and somber place, so these beautiful islands and the wonderful climate are a welcomed relief.

I will spend my first month or so here obtaining an understanding of our mission responsibilities and how this installation operates. Little will change immediately, but I have some definite ideas for our future, and I hope, as a community, we can embrace the changes as positive and motivating.

Colonel Brown warned me that much of my command time will be spent in Washington, D.C. in political quests for funds to improve the infrastructure on Kwajalein, Roi-Namur, and test facility islands. Initiatives such as Privatization will be worked hard during my tenure so that the quality of life here does not continue to erode in terms of infrastructure. I look forward to this and many other challenges that face us as a community, and I pledge my most sincere efforts in this vital area.

Having spent 24 years serving our great Army, I am ever conscious of my requirements as a Soldier and leader. I understand, though, there are times when a workforce can be stressed to the breaking point. This command is high intensity in its operational mission, and heavily engaged on its support mission. With this appreciation, I understand that we must all set aside personal time to recharge. I am no different, and hope that each of us can respect everyone's right to privacy in the fishbowl where we live and work. I encourage everyone to be conscious of the balance required to work in a high stress environment and observe necessary personal down-time.

My husband, Gary, was present for the change of command Tuesday. I take this opportunity to thank everyone who made this ceremony so special to the Stipes and Browns. Many of you know that Gary departed that same day, and will miss this opportunity to become one with the community. I assure you, his short time here was special, and he will exploit every opportunity to return as his job in Virginia permits. Thank you for making him feel so welcomed.

As this is the first of many communications I will have with you, thank you again for your support and all you do to contribute to life on the atoll!

Privatization helps upgrade military housing

By Sgt. 1st Class Doug Sample, USA
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON - With funding levels making it increasingly difficult to maintain acceptable housing conditions at many military installations, the Defense Department in the mid-1990s turned management and maintenance of some 200,000 "below standard" quarters over to private firms.

"We knew that we would never be able to budget enough money to be able fix all of that housing in any short time frame," said Joseph K. Sikes, DoD's director of housing and competitive sourcing, in an interview today with the Pentagon Channel and American Forces Press Service. "We originally estimated it would take about 20 years, based on the amount of money we were budgeting for housing back in the middle '90s," he added.

Today, Sikes appears much more optimistic. He said DoD's plan for privatizing government housing has meant that 95 percent of the department's inadequate housing will be fixed by 2007. Sikes said Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld identified military housing as a top priority for the department and that President Bush made housing privatization a key component of his management initiative.

He said that already some 60,000 inadequate housing units have been eliminated at military installations from Fort Hood, Texas, where more than 5,000 houses needed to be fixed, to Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska. By the end of fiscal 2005, the department will have privatized about 136,000 housing units, he added.

Sikes said the move to turn the management and maintenance of government housing over to private firms went slowly at first. "It was a big cultural change for commanders on bases -- as well as the private sector -- to actually own and maintain these houses on bases," he explained.

"Everyone sort of stood back and waited to see the first project."

The first privatization projects were at Fort Carson, Colo., and Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He said both projects proved to be successful, and soon commanders realized the program was a way to get housing

“After 2007, more and more bases will determine it’s easier not to take care of the houses yourself. It’s better to have a private developer maintaining it and operating it, and so I think we’ll see even more projects become privatized.”

— Joseph K. Sikes, DoD Director of Housing

fixed sooner.

"After 1999, the projects really started coming in at a higher pace," he said. "And what we're seeing now is a result of that increase."

Sikes said that more than 70 percent of base housing is now privatized, and he expects that number to rise.

"After 2007, more and more bases will determine it's easier not to take care of the houses yourself," he explained. "It's better to have a private developer maintaining it and operating it, and so I think we'll see even more projects become privatized."

According to Sikes, thus far 32 projects have been awarded and $581 million invested in the program. Meanwhile, private firms have invested some $6.5 billion to improve living conditions and housing for service members and their families, he said.

Night skies to glow green as EQUIS II begins

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

On Aug. 2 when the launch window opens for the NASA Wallops EQUIS II program, some of the night skies over the Kwajalein Atoll will have a strange glowing-cloud, as scientists from NASA and several universities study the ionosphere.

The NASA Wallops EQUIS II program's launch window will begin on Aug. 2 and continue through Sept. 23, with several main differences from missions which residents in the Kwajalein Atoll are used to seeing.

Most of the rockets will be launched from Roi-Namur sometime between 8 p.m. and midnight depending on the phase of the moon.

The first night of the launch window, Aug. 2, will only be about an hour long, but each consecutive night the window will increase as the moon falls further below the horizon. Eventually, the window for launching the rockets will increase to about four hours long.

The rockets will travel approximately 160 miles into space where they will make measurements of storms in space, which happens when particles from the sun interact with the Earth's magnetic field. Large disturbances can occur which disrupt satellite communications, navigation and television broadcasts.

On some of the rockets, the experiment-payload will produce a green glowing cloud northeast and/or stance similar to kerosene which burns very slowly and produces a yellow or lime-green cloud as it burns.

"The glow comes from it burning," said John Hickman, EQUIS II campaign manager.

The cloud produces "water, carbon dioxide and what amounts to aluminum rust," Hickman said.

He added the substance will completely burn up in space far above the atmosphere and none of the burning substance will fall on the atoll.

Hickman said that "similar experiments have been carried out all over the world including Virginia, our home base, Alaska, Norway and Brazil to name a few."

The EQUIS II program will launch a total of 14 rockets from Roi-Namur, most of which will be at night. Two rockets will be launched during the day, when the moon phase is not suitable for night time launches. These two launches will also be accompanied by four Met Rocket launches from Kwajalein. According to Hickman all the experiments are slightly different, but they all have a common goal to "better understand and predict space weather."

Unlike past missions where residents are alerted and have several minutes to go to North Point and watch the mission, the launches from Roi will occur within minutes of the scientists' call, according to Hickman. The scientists, which will use Altair to watch for the space storms, will have to wait until they see just the right conditions before they will launch.

The Change of Command ceremony, a tradition of passing the colors from the outgoing commander to the incoming commander, was held Tuesday at the Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School Multi-Purpose room.

This signified a relinquishing of command from outgoing USAKA Commander, Col. Jerry P. Brown to incoming USAKA Commander Col. Beverly M. Stipe.

Stipe received the USAKA flag from Commanding General of the US Army Space and Missile Defense Command LTG Larry J. Dodgen and then handed the flag to 1st Sgt. Dennis Neal for safe keeping.

The ceremony was attended by US Ambassador Greta N. Morris, the Minister of Foreign Affairs Gerald Zachios, and the President of the Marshall Islands Kessai Note and his wife Mary, along with several Marshallese traditional leaders and many of the residents of Kwajalein.

Dodgen remarked he had attended many Change of Command ceremonies, but never one where a Head of State and the First Lady attended.

A cake-cutting ceremony was held in the CRC and then Brown with his wife Jane and daughters, April and Autumn, boarded a flight for his new assignment in Japan.

Brown Sugar wins championship

Camilla Morrison
Reporter

The third annual kickball tournament ended Saturday at Brandon Field with Brown Sugar prevailing over Team Funk, 8-1.

Brown Sugar remained undefeated throughout the week-long tournament, and Team Funk's only two losses were to Brown Sugar.

After Brown Sugar's win that evening, Key Doland, adult athletics supervisor, said, "The teams' sportsmanship was outstanding."

Brown Sugar celebrated the win with a meal of lumpia, which some of the team members had prepared, and enjoying their trophy, a gold kickball.

Doland said, "This is the best kickball I've seen since 1979."

Tournament highlights included two grand slams, kicked by Tyler Shields for the Bunt Monkeys, and Craig McCarragher for the Ball Busters.

The tournament, sponsored by Community Activities, was organized as a single round-robin where each of the six teams played five games.

Former Kwaj Kid injured in Iraq

By Jean Culberson
Special to The Hourglass

Kiet Christensen, 30, son of former Kwajalein residents Andrew and Lynn Christensen, was critically injured two weeks ago in a Humvee accident in Iraq.

Christensen, an Army Military Police Sergeant, was part of the escort team for Gen. George Casey, who is the theater commander.

Christensen is currently being treated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., with his parents at his side.

Since joining the army in 1995

Christensen has served in Korea, Kuwait, Georgia, Germany and Texas and in Bosnia/Herzegovina as escort to Gen. Michael Dodson.

He trained with both the Rangers and the Seals and received special schooling as a body guard.

Lynn said, "Kiet's good at being a Soldier and takes pride in it. He feels he's doing an important job. He's hoping to make the military a career and we're hoping with him."

For more information or updates on his condition contact Jean Culberson at barbara.jean.culberson@us.army.mil. The Christensens were on Kwajalein from 1973-75 with Raytheon and 1981-86 with RCA/GE.

PUBLIC NOTICE APPOINTMENT OF PART-TIME UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF HAWAII AT KWAJALEIN MISSILE RANGE

The Judicial Conference of the United States has authorized the appointment of a part-time United States magistrate judge for the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii at Kwajalein Missile Range.

The duties of the position are demanding and wide-ranging, and include: (1) the conduct of most preliminary proceedings in criminal cases; (2) the trial and disposition of misdemeanor cases; (3) the conduct of various pretrial matters and evidentiary proceedings on delegation from the judges of the district court; and (4) the trial and disposition of civil cases upon consent of the litigants. The basic authority of a United States magistrate judge is specified in 28 U.S.C. Section 636.

To be qualified for appointment an applicant must:

- (1) Be, and have been for at least five years, a member in good standing of the bar of the highest court of a state, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Territory of Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, or the Virgin Islands of the United States, and have been engaged in the active practice of law for a period of at least five years (with some substitutes authorized), or have a degree from a college or university of recognized standing, with a minimum of 5 years of progressively responsible administrative experience in public service or business;
- (2) Be competent to perform all the duties of the office; be of good moral character; be emotionally stable and mature; be committed to equal justice under the law; be in good health; be patient and courteous; and be capable of deliberation and decisiveness;
- (3) Be less than seventy years old;
- (4) Not be related to a judge of the district court; and
- (5) Reside on Kwajalein.

A merit selection panel composed of attorneys and other members of the community will review all applicants and recommend to the judges of the district court in confidence the five persons it considers best qualified. The court will make the appointment following an FBI full-field investigation and an IRS tax check of the applicant selected by the court for appointment. An affirmative effort will be made to give due consideration to all qualified applicants, including women and members of minority groups. The current annual salary of the position is $3,662. The term of office is four years. More information on the magistrate judge position may be obtained from the Clerk of the U.S. District Court or the chairperson of the selection panel.

An original and three copies of a resume must be submitted only by applicants personally and must be received no later than August 31, 2004, and should be addressed to:

MERIT SELECTION PANEL - U.S. DISTRICT COURT
300 ALA MOANA BLVD., RM. C-338
HONOLULU, HI 96850

All resumes will be kept confidential, unless the applicant consents to disclosure, and all applications will be examined only by members of the merit selection panel and the judges of the district court. The panel's deliberations will remain confidential.

By Order of the Court, Walter A.Y.H. Chinn, Clerk

Actionable Intelligence relies on every Soldier

By Joe Burlas
Army News Service

Editor's note: This is a weekly series on the 17 Army focus areas. This one focuses on Actionable Intelligence.

WASHINGTON - Actionable Intelligence means providing commanders and Soldiers a high level of situational understanding, delivered with speed, accuracy and timeliness, in order to conduct successful operations, according to the charter of the focus area task force on the subject. Actionable Intelligence is not perfect intelligence - commanders need to be trained on what intelligence can be reasonably delivered and what cannot, said the Army's top military intelligence planner and policy maker. Lt. Gen. Keith Alexander, Army G2, gave members of the Pentagon press corps a snapshot April 8 of what Task Force Actionable Intelligence has found since it was created last fall and how its initiatives will transform the way military intelligence will operate in the future. One of the ways the task force hopes to change in the Army is making every Soldier a sensor that quickly reports the Soldier's slice of the battlefield into a digital network. Combat Soldiers are trained to report what they believe to be critical information up the chain of command. However, that report takes time as it makes it through the chain, and the information that is reported is often filtered. By the time it makes it to where it might be acted on, it is often too late or incomplete, Alexander said. A shared network, with each Soldier having a means of digitally inputting and sending what he sees, is where Army is heading, Alexander said. Progress in the area is being made, as he said his action officers are in close coordination with their counterparts in G6 to develop and implement the infrastructure, equipment, procedures and tools needed for that network. Looking at lessons learned from Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Iraqi Freedom from the start of major hostilities through recent observations of current threats, the task force identified 127 issues that needed to into modular forces, Alexander said. Warfighting forces currently in the Central Command area of operations have been beefed up with a number of ad hoc tactical HUMINT collection teams as well. The greater need for tactical HUMINT is because the threat has changed in our lifetimes, from facing a Cold War adversary armed with lots of tanks and artillery to an asymmetrical enemy, Alexander explained. The intelligence community is no longer just looking for a bunch of equipment to identify where the enemy is and determine what his intentions might be; it is also looking for individual people, Alexander said.

One of the ways the task force hopes to change in the Army is making every Soldier a sensor that quickly reports the Soldier's slice of the battlefield into a digital network.

be fixed as soon as possible. Interim and permanent solutions for all but a few of those issues have already been implemented, Alexander said. Some of those fixes have been changes to procedures, software updates and rapid fielding of new equipment. One of the biggest intelligence shortcomings of both operations was the lack of human intelligence assets at the battalion and brigade level -- something that is being addressed as returning forces reset

The G2 said he is looking to industry and academia to help better organize and visually present information from multiple intelligence databases. The current system is much like an Internet search using a standard search tool that gives you thousands of hits. Refining your query until you get what you are looking for is time-consuming, Alexander continued. There has to be a better way of getting the data you need than using a hierarchical Industrial Age process when we are living in the Information Age, Alexander said. Situational awareness also means sharing information seamlessly across all levels - from national intelligence assets down to the Soldier on the battlefield. That will require a cultural change and a lot of training, Alexander said.
